ELECTION HELD IN CITY JAIL

Two Mayors, Two Sheriffs, Magistrate and Treasurer Are Chosen to Fill Unexpired Terms of Each New Official

A general election was held Friday in which two mayors, two sheriffs, a magistrate and a treasurer were selected to fill the unexpired terms of the several officials. The Australian ballot system was employed insuring absolute secrecy in the voting and further making it possible for a man to vote for himself without being accused of unfair procedure.

The election was held in the basement of the city hall, in the "bull pen" and brought out the complete vote of all registered. The result was immediately posted, but for obvious reasons the names cannot be published at this time. Each of the newly elected officials was at once inducted into office and assumed the duties attached thereto. The terms of the new officials ran concurrently with the terms imposed upon them by City Magistrate McBride and expire upon the day of their discharge from the city jail.

One of the mayors will act in the day time and the other "takes the chair" throughout the nights. In fact he has already been fondly spoken of as the "night mare". One sheriff acts in the daylight hours, while the other is on duty while daylight is absent. The magistrate and the treasurer are on duty twenty-four hours out of every twenty-four. The duty of the former is to assess fines and fix punishments for offenses, real or imaginary. The function of the treasurer is to collect all fines and see that they are expended for tobacco, fruit and matches.

The first offender to come before the newly elected magistrate upon a complaint from the mayor was unkempt and unshaven. He was found guilty and assessed a fine of twenty-five cents with the further order that he clean up and comb his hair. Notice of appeal was filed and upon information being received that the prisoner had on deposit with the desk sergeant the sum of eighty-five cents, a new trial was ordered. A second time he was found even more guilty than at the conclusion of his first trial. A fine of eighty-five cents was thereupon imposed, the treasurer instructed to collect and the sheriff directed to enforce the "cleanup" order.

There are several cases on the docket for today. Several are charged with spitting on the floor of the city jail, others with throwing paper on the floor, still others with stealing blankets from cell mates and other with "messing" the occupants of the women's cell around the corner.

A certificate of election has as yet not been filed with the secretary of state.
